NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS.

A REJECTED SUITOR'S REVENGE. Stillmen Randolph, hostler, and James Wieringa, coachman, are fugitives from justice for brutally streets of North Plainfield, N. J. Randolph had offered himself as a partner to Miss Kate Murphy, of Metuchen, at a public ball, but had been refused, Miss Murphy had once before declined his attentions. He was ejected from the ball, threatening to shoot her dead. Randolph and Wierings then lay in wait at a dark street corner, and when Miss Murphy, ac-companied by Gilbert Murray, passed by on her way home, Randolph sprang forward and felled her to the earth with his fists and ground his heel in her face, corribly disfiguring her. Wieringa knocked Murray down with a club. Both ruffians then fled. Murphy, seriously injured, and Murray, severely cut and bruised, were taken to Dr. Carwan's where three young women who halt fainted at witnessing the scene were also cared for. Miss Murphy's condition is critical. Murray will recover. Marshal Pangborn is searching for the fugitives in the mountains.

THE FLACK INDICTMENT SUSTAINED.

CIVIL JUSTICE MONELL SAID TO BE TOO ILL FOR TRIAL. Judge Brady, in the Supreme Court, yesterday

anded down a written opinion denying the motion to quash the indictment against Sheriff Flack, and denying also the motion for the production for inspection by Flack's counsel of the minutes of the proceedings of the Grand Jury when the indictments were found against Flack and the others who were mixed up in the divorce scandal. When the decision was announced Assistant District-Attorney Goff moved that the trial be begun next Monday. Ex-Judge Horace Russell opposed the motion and read affidavits of Drs. Charles W. Packard and William H. Draper, declaring that Civil Justice Monell was so ill that it would be at the risk of his life to appear in court, or even submit to an examination at his home. Dr. Draper was of the opinion that Judge Monell would never be able to leave his home again, and upon these affidavits ex Judge Russell asked that Monell's trial be postponed until the December term.

The Assistant District-Attorney vigorously opposed the motion, and said that family physicians would swear to anything for their patients. He said the administration of justice would be blocked if a de-fendant, because of his high social standing, could remain at home upon such pretexts. Until this in vestigation was begun, he said, Monell was well enough and had professed a burning desire to be heard. This brought ex Judge Russell to his feet again, and This brought excludes Russell to his feet again, and he denounced the instruction cast upon the physicians as infamous. He declared that Monell was more likely to be tried before the bar of God than in the court. Then Mr. Russell hauled District-Attorney Fellows over the coals for pressing this case, when there were so many murderers and other criminals in the Tombs awaiting trial.

so many murderers and other criminals in the awaiting trial.

Judge Brady said that from the high standing of the physicians whose names were signed to the affildavits, he was inclined to think that Monell's condition was as represented, but on the recommendation of the Assistant District-Attorney, he would appoint a physician to examine Monell, without lefting the sick man know of it, because ex-Judge Hussell expressed the fear that any excitement might kill the patient. Judge Brady then said that he would postpone the trial of all the alleged conspirators until after the examination of Monell.

NOT GUILTY OF ROBBING MRS. POLLARD. Mrs. Marie Antoinette Nathalie Pollari appeared as complainant yesterday against William N. Besant and Eda Besant, who formerly had a boarding house at No. 241 West Twenty third st. The indictment was for robbery in the first degree, punishable by imprisonment for from ten to twenty years. Mrs. Pollard is the widow of E. A. Pollard, the Southern historian. She is a public lecturer. She formerly ledged with the Besants in Twenty-third-st., and was their tenant on April 26 last when they were moving out under compulsion for non-payment of rent. She testified that on that day Mrs. Besant entered her bedroom, threw her out of bed, and ordered the men who were moving out the furniture to take the bed, bureau and other articles out of the room. She said that they re-moved a trunk containing some of her clothing, and took away other clothing in one of the bureau draw ers. Mrs. Pollard said that she was forced to run into She was ill at the time of the alleged assault. Several policemen appeared in response to her call, but they refused to interfere. The testimony for the defendants was that Mrs. Pollard owed a small sum for board and lodging. She would not leave her room and allow the furniture to be taken out, although a warrant had been served requiring that the tenants should rant had been served requiring that the tenants should vacate the house. Policeman Bannon testified that on the morning after the alleged robbery Mr. Besant told Mrs. Pollard that her trunk had been taken to a storage warehouse at Sixth-ave. ard Thirty-eighth-st., and that she could have it by paying the amount due for board. The defendants denied that they had used any violence in removing the furniture.

The jury acquitted the Besants at the direction of the judge. Deputy Assistant District-Attorney Dawson, who conducted the prosecution, was an old friend of Mrs. Pollard, and she had formerly been his ellent.
